

Andrew J. Radin is the Director of Recycling and Waste Reduction for the Onondaga County Resource Recovery Agency. He administers the community's award-winning recycling program and coordinates a team of recycling professionals who manage a wide variety of environmental programs, including compost site operations and household hazardous waste collections.

Radin has over 25 years of professional solid waste experience, and has served on the board of a number of professional environmental organizations, including the New York Product Stewardship Council (current Chair), and the New York State Association of Reduction, Reuse, and Recycling (NYSAR3).

He received a Masters of Public Administration degree from Syracuse University's Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, and a Masters of Environmental Science degree from the State University of New York's College of Environmental Science and Forestry. He received an undergraduate degree in public communication from Boston University.

Personal Achievement: In 2015, Radin was honored by the New York State Association for Reduction, Reuse and Recycling with their Lifetime Achievement Award.
